

Help your first-year college student successfully transition to university life!

*“T2U helped me gain the confidence to meet new people and try new experiences on campus.”
~ Ryon B., Class of 2019, Queens University of Charlotte*

The Transition to University College Prep Seminar helps increase self-confidence and teaches valuable skills that will prepare and assist recently graduated high school seniors with their transition to the university setting. This one-day seminar will help your rising first-year college student learn how to navigate the realities of college life (including dealing with roommate conflict and balancing academic and social lives) and form new social ties. Sessions will involve short workshops, presentations, and discussions about academics, living situations, social relationships, and other daily life concerns commonly experienced during the first few months of college life. Upper-class university students have been invited to participate in some of the discussions and workshops to provide a “real-world” perspective from students who have experienced and successfully navigated normal challenges during their first year of university life.

Since its development and inception in 2006 at Queens University of Charlotte, empirical research has consistently shown the Transition to University (T2U) program to be highly successful in helping first-year students make the transition from high school to college. First-year students who voluntarily participated in the T2U program have significantly higher retention, higher social and academic adjustment, increased self-confidence, and increased ability to apply valuable skills taught in the program compared to first-year students who elected not to participate. This program has now been revised to a one-day experience to allow your rising first-year university student the opportunity to learn important information and essential skills to take with them to their respective college.

The 2018 T2U College Prep seminar will be offered:

When: Wednesday, July 25th from 9:30 am – 4:30 pm (or) Wednesday, Aug 1st from 9:30 am – 4:30 pm
Where: Queens University of Charlotte (specific classroom TBD)
Cost: $250 per participant (includes snacks/drinks during scheduled breaks, lunch, and seminar materials)
